

Questions TO ASK

When you first accept a new women's ministry leader position you have to evaluate how things are already going before you move forward. Here are some questions to ask.

In some cases you might be able to get some of the answers to the following questions from a former leader or some of the women of the church.

How often are current meetings and activities?

Monthly Meetings:
Bible Studies:
Activities:
Special events:

How many attend meetings and activities?

Monthly Meetings:
Bible Studies:
Activities:
Special events:

When was the last big event?

How many were in attendance?

What Bible Studies are already in place?

What Bible Studies were finished recently?

In the matter of the following questions you need to seek the answers out for yourself just by observing for a little while.

Does the church as a whole seem to respect the Women's Ministry program?

- Yes
- No

Does the pastor seem to respect the Women's Ministry program?

- Yes
- No

Does the church leadership seem to respect the Women's Ministry program?

- Yes
- No

Does the Women's Ministry have an impact on their church?

- Yes
- No

Does the Women's Ministry have an impact on their community?

- Yes
- No

What stage of spirituality are most of the women?

- Baby Christians
- Growing Christians
- Mature Christians

Do the women seem to have an importance on prayer?

- Yes
- No

Do the women seem to get along in unity?

- Yes
- No